Andy:

Happy New Year...I wanted to catch up with you on a number of things. First, thanks for the coverage of our first global report. I think the material was important and it has gotten substantial pickup all around the world— in part thanks to the NYT and IHT initial coverage. I am also happy to see Times writers using the material on follow up stories about Turkey, South Korea and so on...

We have a second wave of reporting that we are now working on that deals with globalization, social, political and economic value differences around the world. We also have a lot of material in Muslim countries on views about the role of Islam and governance. The report is being prepared for release in late March. However, we may also do a fresh survey in a small number of countries to put a topper on this material. Obviously, we are waiting on world developments to decide about this.

We are hoping and expecting that the IHT will continue as our international print partner. I am not sure to whom to turn on this, since Ignatius and Mc Cartney were my contacts. Do you have a suggestion?

Secondly, the success of the global project, so far has led us to consider turning the project to an on going initiative with timely, discrete surveys on topical issues in the years ahead such as we began with the IHT in 2001. For example, right now it would have been valuable to have a survey in South Korea. Given the potential for a divide with Europe, it might be worthwhile to monitor attitudes toward America and transatlantic issues periodically.

Don Kimelman and I wonder if the Times – IHT would be interest in pursuing a fuller more permanent partnership. Is this worth a conversation?
